

About Plays and Players

By BIDE DUDLEY

EDGAR MACGREGOR has accepted for production before fall a comedy called "A Night of Love," written by Samuel R. Goiding. Mr. Macgregor has changed the title of his play with music which he tried out recently from "A Dangerous Maid" to "Love." When he produced it again it was a success. He has a few weeks ago had a success with "A Night of Love," which he has now changed to "A Dangerous Maid." The reason was the title was too long and the music was not as good as the play. The play is a comedy and the music is a success. The play is a comedy and the music is a success.
